Abstract

What is the best way to teach English? In the second language learning environment, teaching methods have been changing. According to Stern (1993), one of the main features of the development of language pedagogy is the continuous attempt to renew language teaching through changing teaching methods. This effort has gone on unabated from the late nineteenth century up to present time. Some English teachers find it impossible to look for a best way to teach. Ultimately teachers try to teach effectively; then what is needed?
